HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY

Featured Writer

Galbato Moran

Valentine's Day is a special holiday designed to honor love and affection in all its forms. At its core, it's a simple reminder to go out of our way to celebrate the people we love most. It has always been a favorite holiday of mine. The color palette of red, pink, and white brings me insurmountable joy. Plus, my undeniable addiction to chocolate certainly doesn't hurt.

My brother was born on Valentine's Day, so the holiday was already a big deal in our household. My mother loves a celebration, and having a family birthday and a national holiday fall on the same day truly allowed her creativity to shine. One year, she arranged for our Papa and his fellow Jamestown Harmony Express friends to surprise us at school, singing silly love songs and, of course, "Happy Birthday" to my brother. Chocolate-covered strawberries accompanied the barbershoppers, making it the perfect mix of cheesiness, sweetness, and pure fun. To me, that was the epitome of the holiday.

I also grew up in a family florist, where February 14th was one of our busiest days of the year. I witnessed firsthand people in our community sending fresh arrangements to their spouses, children, parents,

Two years ago, on Valentine's Day, I began writing a love story. It's the story of a girl who met an opportunity, took a chance, and fell in love.

People often ask if I always wanted to be a "journalist," or if my background is in "publishing". These are questions to which I simply smile and respond, "Not at all. My background is in politics." Most of my professional life has been spent right here in Chautauqua County, interfacing with businesses, residents, and organizations in roles that might more accurately be described as community outreach and engagement.

When longtime Gazette founder Stacey Hannon retired and was kind enough to allow me to purchase her then 14-year brainchild---to keep our cherished local weekly out on the streets (and online!) and in your hands---it felt like a natural match made in heaven. I was proud to continue her vision of a true community newspaper and, truly, to pursue my greatest passion: showcasing Chautauqua County.

For the love of our Community

WE LORI

Editor-in-Chief
Katrina Fuller

Two years ago, the Chautauqua Gazette, then known as the Jamestown Gazette, entered a new era under the ownership and leadership of Lori Cornell, a woman with vision, grit and an uncanny ability to say, “Can we do this?” moments before actually doing it. Lori took the reins from the venerable Stacey Hannon, the Gazette’s founder, and kept true to the community-minded leadership Stacey started the paper with.

Since then, she has worn many hats: publisher, owner, idea generator, cheerleader, problem-solver, occasional last-minute texter and a fountain of ideas for a paper chock full of goodness. If you’ve ever received a text from Lori that starts with “Can you give me a call?” you know the conversation that follows will be brilliant, and the topics will become a headline, a feature and possibly a community tradition before the week is over. Under Lori’s leadership, the Gazette has remained exactly what it claims to be: local, community-oriented and human.

There have been late nights, last-minute changes and moments where everyone collectively asked, “Are we really doing this?” But two years in, the answer has consistently been yes, and Lori is right there in the trenches until the presses are rolling!

Happy second anniversary to Lori: publisher, owner and fearless believer in the idea that local news still matters. We tease because we love, and we love you because you believe in what can be and stand with us to make it happen!

Some Time I’ve Spent in Reverie

A Sonnet by Paul Leone

Some time I’ve spent in reverie,
Since first your beauty I’d admired;
Some reason have I to lament,
What then I’d thought your love required.
Now I’ve engaged your private eyes,
Or, rather, you have engaged mine,
No longer need I to disguise
My faulty reasoning’s design.
And you, your passion once concealed,
Now granted me admission to,
Our petty poses are revealed,
Our lies are made confession to.
In reverie once more adrift,
I cherish now your chastening gift.

Valentine's Day

neighbors, and friends. Or the high schools that organized carnation sales, which I couldn't wait to participate in. It was heartwarming to see the support for my family's business, but even more touching to watch people take that extra step to make someone else's day feel special. I will die on the hill that there are few things better than being surprised with fresh flowers. Maybe I'm biased, but I still get teary-eyed every time my husband brings home a bouquet. On many birthdays, my parents sent me flowers wherever I lived, from Baltimore to Pittsburgh, to Manhattan, and Buffalo. And even the times my nieces hand-picked flowers, mostly dandelions, from the backyard. To me, getting fresh flowers brings instant butterflies.

I'm now in the jewelry industry, and for the past few years, my Februaries have been spent delivering custom engagement rings and deeply sentimental pieces to clients, with the occasional heart-shaped gemstone mixed in. It's the sentimentality that first drew me to fine jewelry. I love that a single piece can be worn every day and still carry a story. Maybe it's a strand of a grandmother's pearls, brought over by a grandfather while he was stationed in Asia. Perhaps it's a bracelet set with a birthstone for each child and grandchild, or a modern engagement ring crafted with a diamond passed down from Great Aunt Betty. Being trusted with these milestones fills my (admittedly sappy) heart. And I've noticed that people feel especially inspired to create meaningful, sentimental jewelry from November through February - a season when love, reflection, and connection feel front and center.

Over the years, I've met people who "despise" Valentine's Day because it makes them feel lonely or acutely single. But I firmly believe the holiday isn't reserved for romantic love alone. Yes, that's the most obvious form, but there's something powerful about celebrating all the love in our lives. A little extra attention and appreciation have never hurt anyone. If anything, the world could use more love now than ever. Whether you're single or have been married for sixty years, consider this your sign to embrace Valentine's Day to the fullest. And to help you do just that, I've gone ahead and compiled a few Valentine's Day dos and don'ts:

Do: Support Local

It's hard to miss the commercialization of Valentine's Day in nearly every retail store. While you're planning your gifts, consider skipping online shopping and big-box stores. Instead, visit your local florist, gift shop, jewelry store, candy shop, spa, salon, restaurant, bakery, coffee shop, or even a museum. With Valentine's Day falling on a Saturday, there are endless opportunities to spend time with your loved ones out and about. Remember, the small businesses in our community are the same ones sponsoring your child's soccer team or donating a basket to your fundraiser's silent auction. And if you're unsure what to give or plan, a gift card is always a thoughtful (and foolproof) option.

Do: Add an Element of Surprise

Surprises don't have to be grand to be meaningful. Having flowers delivered to a loved one's workplace is a guaranteed way to brighten their day — but maybe this year, you sign them up for a monthly flower subscription instead. If you've already decided on a restaurant for dinner, call ahead to have champagne waiting at the table. Thoughtful surprises show extra effort, and that intention goes a long way in making the holiday feel special.

Do: Show Love to as Many People as Possible

Mail a letter to your grandmother. Send flowers to your recently widowed aunt. Put together a gift basket for your nephew. Bring your coworkers a Valentine's sweet. Take your parents out to dinner. Plan a movie night with your best friend. Give your sister a spa day. Send a barbershop quartet to your brother. You get the idea, spread the love. And while you're at it, don't forget the first tip: support local whenever you can.

Don't: Wait Until the Last Minute

If you're reading this on Monday, February 9th, you're ahead of the game. And if it's Friday, February 13th... don't panic. There's still time. Many local businesses extend their hours and bring on extra staff to accommodate the holiday rush. Let all that preparation work in your favor.

Don't: Worry If It's Cheesy

Half the fun of Valentine's Day is the cheesiness, so lean into it. Get dressed to the nines for dinner, gift a silly stuffed animal, or watch a marathon of rom-coms. I promise, those are often the moments that end up being the most memorable.

Happy Valentine's Day!

Happy Valentine's Day

Contributing Writer

Pat Locke

Valentine's Day is one of those holidays that carries layers of meaning, depending on where you're standing in life.

At its simplest, it's a day set aside to honor love and connection. It's a day with heartfelt messages, roses and chocolates. For some it's a joyful and affirming, yet for others it can feel bittersweet when love has been lost, changed or complicated. The day doesn't just celebrate love; it exposes how much we value it.

At its best, Valentine's Day is less about grand gestures and more about intentional care which could be a phone call, a shared memory or a simple kindness. Love doesn't stop existing when it's quieter, older or shaped by absence. In fact, many people discover its deepest meaning then. In that way, Valentine's Day is not only about who you're with, it's about what love has meant to you and still does.

As the author of this column, and having been married to my husband, Bill, since 1970 we have learned that Valentine's Day feels less like a single date on the calendar and more like a quiet pause. It's a chance to remember the love that shaped us and still does. Valentine's Day asks less of us than we think. Only that we notice where love has been, where it lingers, and how it continues to matter.

Happy Valentine's Day!

Many of you know me as a personal friend and as author of this special column, "Pat's Pen". But I also invite you enjoy my unique blog that features people, places, and preservation in our community. STAR: School Tax Relief Made Simpley

Contributed by

Dana Corwin

Director of Chautauqua County
Office for Aging Services

School property taxes can be a significant expense for homeowners. New York State's School Tax Relief (STAR) Program helps eligible homeowners lower the school tax portion of their property taxes on their primary residence (the home you live in). STAR does not apply to rental properties, second homes, or seasonal residences.

Next, let's look at how the STAR Program operates. STAR provides tax relief in one of two ways: it reduces the taxable value of your home for school taxes by providing a STAR credit to your school tax bill, or as a direct deposit from New York State.

There are two types of STAR programs to consider: Basic STAR and Enhanced STAR.

BASIC STAR is for homeowners of any age. However, you must own and reside in the home as your primary residence. Your household income of $500,000 for a credit, $250,000 or less for the exemption. The benefit is a reduction in your school taxes through a STAR credit or existing exemption. This is based on 2024 tax returns.

Starting in 2026, eligible seniors with the Basic STAR exemption are automatically upgraded to Enhanced STAR without needing to reapply, as the state will directly verify income and age eligibility. If you currently receive the Basic STAR exemption, the Department of Taxation and Finance will notify your assessor when you now qualify for the higher Enhanced benefit. You may also receive a letter (RP-5300) that states you no longer need to submit the income information and that you have been found to be ELIGIBLE with the last few years of submissions-good work, people! We have had a few older adults contact us regarding letters they received from the NY State Department of Taxation and Finance. These letters stated that the agency determined they no longer need to verify your income to determine if you are eligible for the STAR exemption programs. Wow-great job!

ENHANCED STAR is for homeowners age 65 or older (only one owner must be 65+). You must live in the home as a primary residence. Your combined income of resident owners and spouses is $110,750 or less. The benefit provides a larger school tax reduction than Basic STAR. There are important changes beginning in 2026. A few things to know:

Age Requirement: At least one owner must be 65 or older by Dec. 31, 2026.

- No local application required to move from Basic to Enhanced STAR
- Automatic upgrades when eligibility is met, and income information is current
- Income rules simplified to include only owners and spouses who live in the home

You should make sure that the information on your property and the STAR or Enhanced STAR program is correct! Please monitor your information on the following website. Check or update your information using the Homeowner Benefit Portal. It is on the web at <https://www.tax.ny.gov/pit/>

Artemis II and Beyond

Martz-Kohl Observatory

As NASA enters a historic new era of deep-space exploration, the Martz-Kohl Observatory is proud to announce a very timely presentation by Stephanie Buskirk Dudley, NASA's Moon to Mars Exploration Operations Deputy Director. The event, titled "Artemis II and Beyond: Science and Research," will take place on Wednesday, February 18, 2026, at 7:30 p.m. EST.

Marking the first human return to the lunar vicinity in over fifty years, the Artemis program represents a pivotal shift from lunar visitation to long-term pioneering. This presentation will offer the public an insider's look at the rigorous scientific research that will define these upcoming voyages and lay the groundwork for the eventual human exploration of Mars.

The session will provide a comprehensive deep dive into the objectives of Artemis II, a ten-day mission that will propel a crew of four into deep space. Attendees will learn how the crew will gather critical survival data regarding radiation and human biology. Ms. Dudley will also illuminate the ambitious goals of Artemis III, the historic mission destined to land the first humans near the lunar South Pole. This mission will see astronauts explore permanently shadowed craters to search for vital resources such as water ice.

Stephanie Buskirk Dudley brings a wealth of NASA leadership experience to the observatory. In her current role as Moon to Mars Exploration Operations Deputy Director, she oversees the integration of complex mission profiles. Her distinguished career includes serving as the Mission Integration and Utilization Manager for the Gateway Program and several key leadership roles within the International Space Station Program. A structural engineer by training, Ms. Dudley holds three degrees from the University of Florida and is a licensed private pilot. Her passion for space was ignited as a child while watching Space Shuttle launches from her own backyard.

This event offers a rare opportunity for the public to engage with a key architect of modern spaceflight as NASA turns the dream of a long-term lunar presence into a reality. This talk will be shown on the big screen at the Martz-Kohl Observatory and available online via Zoom. You are encouraged to come to the observatory to virtually meet Stephanie and join in our always lively Q&A after her talk. The observatory is located at 176 Robbin Hill Rd, Frewsburg, NY 14738. If the weather permits, there will be public viewing opportunities. While our lecture room is heated, you should dress for outside weather for tours and viewing. The Martz-Kohl Observatory is managed by the Marshal Martz Memorial Astronomical Association, Inc., a non-profit organization comprised of amateur astronomers. Special Choices

Something we did on our mission trip was a vacation bible school for the little school where we stayed. Another group had it planned; we were the extra helpers, which was good because they were the main Spanish speakers. There was a language barrier, but we all understood smiles and hugs.

As a gift for the children, I brought most of my daughter's and my old Beanie Babies. I had 80 in all, jumbled and tied in a sheet. At the end of their craft session, each child was permitted to choose one Beanie. I can barely begin to describe the joy that followed.

Some just ran up, grabbed one and left. Many took their time and picked carefully to get exactly what they wanted. The girls especially, sorted through various cats, bears, and dogs to get just the right colors and textures. One little boy whooped with joy when he found the scorpion Beanie. Thrilled, he went running back to show his friends. Another found a multicolored cat and beamed with pride at his treasure.

The one that really stood out was the girl who picked the orangutan. I was watching her face as she pulled it out and I saw the sparkle come into her eyes. I can't blame her, that little guy is adorable. She stepped back from the others and cradled and cooed at the Beanie, then lifting it, smiled with pure joy as she showed others how sweet her choice was. Then she saw me watching her. I don't know how, but the smile got bigger as I nodded and mimicked her rocking her prize. She scampered back to her table and the group was dismissed. The kids played with those Beanies the rest of the week.

We all wondered what we would do with our Beanie Babies once the craze died down. Clearly, they weren't going to make us rich like some thought. But they sure made those kids happy, and that's a richness I can live with.

When the Ellery Hilltop Farm Kids 4-H Club wanted to help bats, they turned to skilled builders: seniors in the Construction Technology program at Erie 2-Chautauqua-Cattaraugus BOCES.

Under instructor Brennan Morrison, the Career & Technical Education students from the Hewes Educational Center measured and cut 200 pieces of plywood — enough for 28 bat boxes — turning their classroom into a hub of hands-on learning and community service.

The 4-H members then assembled the boxes at a club meeting.

The finished bat boxes will provide safe, cozy homes for these nighttime environmental superheroes, which help control pests, pollinate plants, and support healthy ecosystems.

“We appreciated the Construction Technology students’ help,” said 4-H leaders Holly Reed and Andrea McAdoo. “Their work let our members focus on safe assembly while building teamwork, confidence, and appreciation for skilled trades.”

Maintaining the Site at 1001 Monroe Street in compliance with New York Department of Environmental Conservation standards, as well as the rising cost of grinding yard waste, tree parts and brush, are additional reasons for this change.

Warm & Well at Home Initiative Launched to Help Seniors Maintain Safe, Reliable Home Heating

Dana Corwin, Director of the Chautauqua County Office for Aging Services; Bridgette Paoletta, NY Connects Coordinator; and Josh Freifeld of the Chautauqua Home Rehabilitation and Improvement Corporation announce the launch of the 2026 Warm & Well at Home initiative, a new program designed to help older adults maintain safe, reliable home heating and age safely in place across Chautauqua County.)

Contributed by Chautauqua County

The Chautauqua County Office for Aging Services (OFAS) is pleased to announce the launch of the 2026 “Warm & Well at Home” initiative, a new campaign designed to help older adults remain safely and comfortably in their own homes while maintaining and improving their properties.

This initiative focuses on preventative home maintenance, particularly annual cleaning and safety inspections of home heating equipment, helping to reduce safety risks, improve energy efficiency, and prevent costly emergency repairs.

Offered in partnership with the Chautauqua Home Rehabilitation and Improvement Corporation (CHRIC), Warm & Well at Home connects older adults with trusted, vetted contractors and available funding to ensure heating systems are in good working order.

“Most older adults want to age in place, but the cost and complexity of home repairs or services can be a real barrier,” said Dana Corwin, Chautauqua County Office for Aging Services Director. “The 2026 Warm & Well at Home initiative works to remove those barriers so older adults can live safely, stay healthy, and remain connected to their communities, while also strengthening neighborhoods across Chautauqua County.”

Security, pensions, or savings. Rising costs for utilities, food, healthcare, and property taxes often leave little room for routine home maintenance. As a result, essential services like heating system inspections may be delayed or skipped, increasing safety risks and the likelihood of system failure during extreme weather.

“Through this partnership, residents can access funding and trusted contractors to make their homes safer, warmer, and more energy-efficient, while also contributing to vibrant, thriving neighborhoods,” said Josh Freifeld, CHRIC representative.

Program Eligibility and Focus:

- Age: 60 years and older
- Property: Owner-occupied primary residences only (no second homes or rentals)
- Purpose: For older adults struggling to afford or manage essential home maintenance, including this one time heating system cleaning and safety inspection.

The program is funded on a first-come, first-served basis, with goals to serve residents most in need. Funding is limited, and we will continually be monitoring the demand for this service.

“We are here to guide seniors and caregivers through the application process, making it simple and supportive,” said Bridgette Paoletta, NY Connects Coordinator. “Our

Senator George Borello Announces His Candidacy for Re-election to the 57th State Senate District

Senator Borrello at the Mayville Fourth of July Parade in 2025

Contributed by Senator George Borello

Senator George Borello today officially announced he is seeking re-election to represent the 57th District in the New York State Senate.

"Representing the people of Western New York is the honor of my life, and it's a responsibility I work to earn every day," said Senator Borello. "Albany continues to be dominated by New York City politicians whose priorities are far removed from the realities and values of rural communities like ours. I go there with one mission: to be a strong, unapologetic voice for our residents."

Borello pointed to a record defined by direct constituent service and outreach as well as high-profile policy fights.

"In 2025 alone, my office helped nearly 3,000 constituents cut through red tape and get answers from state government," he said. "Behind those numbers are real families, seniors and small business owners who needed help navigating an often-unresponsive bureaucracy. That kind of hands-on service will always be a top priority," said Borello. "I've also made it a point to stay accessible, hosting town halls in every county across the district and attending as many community events as possible, because the best way to represent people is to listen to them."

Looking ahead, Borello said the defining issue in the 2026 legislative session and the years ahead will be Democrats' controversial Climate Act and its impact on affordability and economic growth.

"The Climate Act and the mandates that have followed may be our biggest fight yet," he said. "Since its passage, energy prices are up more than 50 percent and New York now has among the highest electric rates in the nation. This isn't coincidence; it's the result of Albany trying to overhaul our entire energy economy without a serious feasibility study or cost analysis."

Borello has been a leading voice against industrial wind turbines in Lake Erie and the unchecked expansion of massive solar projects consuming prime farmland across Western New York.

"We can pursue environmental goals without sacrificing our shoreline, our farms, and local control," he said. "Covering productive farmland with solar arrays and pushing offshore wind projects that threaten local industries is not balanced policy; it's ideology overriding common sense."

He noted that ratepayers have already absorbed billions in Climate Act-related costs, with projected totals reaching into the hundreds of billions of dollars.

"Our strong advocacy against the All-Electric Buildings Act, which would have effectively banned natural gas in new construction and driven housing costs even higher, lead to the governor 'pausing' this disastrous law," Borello said. "But a pause is not a repeal. The economy and the future of New York hinge on whether we restore balance, transparency and common sense to this agenda."

Borello also emphasized his longstanding commitment to protecting New York's farmers and agricultural economy, a cornerstone of the 57th District.

Boutwell Hill Ski Club

Cross-country skiers and outdoor enthusiasts are invited to celebrate winter at a ski party hosted by the Boutwell Hill Ski Club on Sunday, February 15. The event will take place from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Boutwell Hill State Forest land at the Rutenbur parking lot in the Town of Arkwright. The parking area is located at 2099 Rutenbur Road, at the intersection of Rutenbur and Rood Roads. Roadside signage will be posted to help attendees find their way. Food will be provided during the event, offering a warm and welcoming gathering point for participants.

The Boutwell Hill Ski Club (BHSC) is a nonprofit organization dedicated to maintaining and grooming trails for cross-country skiers and snowshoers in Chautauqua County. Founded in 2015 by a group of passionate cross-country skiers, the club received permission from the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation to develop ski trails in one of the county's most snow-rich areas.

Starting with the County's East Side Overland Trail, BHSC volunteers have built four additional trails, creating more than five miles of skiable terrain. This progress has been made possible entirely through volunteer labor and successful fundraising efforts, including securing the resources needed to purchase an ATV for trail grooming.

The Boutwell Hill Ski Club can be found on Facebook, and donations are welcome. Contributions may be sent via Venmo or by mail to BHSC, PO Box 192, Cherry Creek, NY 14723. The organization is a registered 501(c)(3) nonprofit.

Senator George Borrello Announces His Candidacy for Re-election to the 57th State Senate District

From top left: joining striking corrections officers at Attica in February 2025, Speaking with constituents at a Town Hall meeting in LeRoy in 2024, At a Veterans Outreach event in Batavia in 2024, Speaking with farmer Roberto Fred of Fred Farms at the Fredonia Farmers Market

"Agriculture isn't just an industry here, it's a way of life," Borrello said. "I've worked across the aisle to support programs like Nourish NY, which connects our farmers with food banks and hunger relief organizations, a true win-win that supports both food-insecure families and local producers."

He also noted that he has consistently pushed back against harmful legislation and costly labor mandates that increase food prices and place added strain on family farms. When Democrats lowered the overtime threshold for farm workers, Borrello was among the most vocal opponents of the change. While the mandate ultimately passed, sustained advocacy helped pressure the Hochul administration to establish a tax credit to help farmers offset the significant new labor costs it imposed.

Public safety remains a core priority as well.

"When our corrections officers stood up during the 2025 strike to demand safer working conditions and accountability for policies like the HALT Act, I stood shoulder to shoulder with them," Borrello said. "We must repeal HALT as well as the failed bail and discovery laws and restore balance to a system that has tilted too far toward criminals at the expense of victims and law-abiding citizens."

Despite serving in the minority, Borrello noted that results matter.

"I was recently ranked the most effective Republican legislator in the New York State Senate by the Center for Effective Lawmaking," he said. "Even in the minority, you can fight, deliver results, and make a difference."

"There is too much at stake to sit on the sidelines," Borrello added. "I am running for re-election because I believe deeply in this region and in the values we share. I will continue fighting every day to make New York more affordable, more accountable, and safer for our families."

Senator Borrello has represented the 57th District since winning a special election in 2019 and being re-elected in 2022 and 2024. The district, one of the Legislature's largest geographically, encompasses Chautauqua, Cattaraugus, Genesee and Wyoming counties, as well as a portion of Allegany County.

"Authors are Rock Stars": Acclaimed Novelist James Kennedy Ignites Creative Spark at Panama and Southwestern Schools

Literature leaped off the page and onto the stage this week as James Kennedy, the celebrated author of the YA fantasy novel The Order of Odd Fish, visited 5th and 6th-grade students at Panama Central Schools and Southwestern Middle School. The visit, which turned traditional assemblies into high-energy masterclasses in storytelling, was made possible through a collaboration with Bob Lingle of Good Neighbor Bookstore.

Bringing Literature to Life

Known for his vivid imagination and engaging presentation style, Kennedy didn't just talk about writing, he performed it. By sharing the "life adventures" that inspired his work, like the time he had to fend off a wild snake during his brief career as a 6th grade teacher, he bridged the gap between the classroom and the professional creative world, leaving students eager to pick up their own pens.

Voices from the Classroom

The impact on the students was immediate and visible. Educators from both districts noted a level of engagement that was nothing short of "electric."

Liz Gruber, Panama Central School, shared:

"Author James Kennedy dazzled my students with his incredible storytelling and presentation style. Students instantly connected with his creative energy. Their eyes were just twinkling with excitement. He enthusiastically encouraged all of them to read, write and create with passion and authenticity. His presentation far exceeded any expectations. I would love to host him again! A ginormous thank you also goes out to Bob Lingle, from the Good Neighbor Bookstore, for his support of this amazing opportunity."

Mary Zdrojewski, Southwestern Middle School, added:

"I have never seen our students as engaged as they were when James read excerpts from his book. They hung on every word and booed and cheered along with the characters. Through James Kennedy's presentation, our students watched literature come to life. James showed them not only that books are windows into fantastic adventures, but that authors are rock stars. Thank you so much to Bob and Good Neighbor bookstore for making this experience possible!"

A Partnership for Literacy

The events were coordinated in partnership with Good Neighbor Bookstore, highlighting the vital role local independent businesses play in enriching our community.

Bob Lingle, owner of Good Neighbor Bookstore, noted:

When you join the chamber of commerce, your business is in good company. A 2024 Harris Poll survey conducted on behalf of the Association of Chamber of Commerce Executives (ACCE) found that 81% of adults in the US agree their local chamber of commerce is a trusted resource and partner for business. 90% feel their local chamber has an impact on growing the local economy, and 64% are more likely to purchase goods and services from a business they know is a member of their local chamber.

These poll results all speak to the issue of trust – demonstrating that consumers put more trust in a business that is a member of the local chamber of commerce. Here in Chautauqua County, the CHQ Chamber is focused on supporting our local businesses in a variety of ways and connecting businesses with the community. Mentors Are the MVPs in Our Community: Speakers and Students Share Powerful Stories at Mentor Recognition Dinner

Contributed by Striders

Chautauqua Striders held their annual Mentor Recognition Dinner on Thursday, January 22 at the Harbor Hotel. It was an evening filled with gratitude, reflection, and powerful reminders of the difference mentors make in the lives of young people. Mentors, students, families, legislators and community supporters gathered to celebrate the individuals who consistently show up for students in our area, offering guidance, encouragement, and belief when it matters most.

This year's theme, "Mentors Are the MVPs in Our Community," came to life through the words of the speakers and student stories that highlighted the dedication, consistency, and care mentors bring to every relationship as they work behind the scenes, helping students navigate school, relationships, and life's challenges while building confidence and resilience.

Melinda Sanderson from the New York State Mentoring Program, Mason Palude from Assemblyman Molitor's office, and Chautauqua County Sheriff Jim Quattrone all shared appreciation for Striders mentors who are investing in the next generation and making our community stronger.

The keynote speaker, Josh Roth, owner of Kinetix Combat Sports, talked about the difference mentors have made in his own life, believing in him and helping him achieve his dream of playing for the Buffalo Bills. He said, "Nearly every meaningful success that I've had can traced back to a mentor. Someone who believed in me, someone who held me accountable, someone who refused to let me settle for anything less than I was capable of." He also shared about the lasting impact mentors have: "Having someone walk alongside you can make all the difference in the world. It's about creating community, a place where people feel seen, valued, supported. That foundation creates well-being, creates confidence, creates resilience."

The most impactful moments came from mentees themselves who shared how much having a mentor means to them. Student speaker Carlous Blake shared how much his mentor Anna Gassman means to him, describing their meetings as a highlight of his week. As a senior preparing for college, Carlous emphasized how valuable it is to have a trusted adult to lean on. "We talk about everything - college stuff, life stuff, and random silly things. Having someone like my mentor to talk to makes all of it way less stressful," he shared. Carlous also spoke about being a peer mentor himself and seeing the impact of mentoring come full circle.

Laura Arnold reflected on being matched with her mentor, Mikayla Certo, since elementary school, and underscored the importance of long-term commitment. "From the very beginning, my mentor made me feel

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

The Northern Chautauqua Community Foundation (NCCF) is excited to announce that nominations are now open for the 2026 George B. Weaver Jr. Footprints Award. This annual award celebrates individuals who have made significant contributions to their community through philanthropy and community service, leaving "footprints" for others to follow.

"We are seeking nominations for those who dedicate their time and resources to improving our community," says Diane Hannum, NCCF's Executive Director. "It's not about the amount of resources donated, but the impact they've made through their commitment and actions. Often, these individuals are unsung heroes, working quietly for the betterment of northern Chautauqua."

Nominees should demonstrate a strong history of community service, philanthropic efforts (where financial support is not measured solely by dollar amounts), and activities that have positively influenced northern Chautauqua County. Previous award recipients include George B. Weaver Jr.; Dallas Beal; Robert Maytum; Jim & Carol Boltz; Donald Q. Eno; the founding NCCF Board of Directors & the first elected Board of Directors; Richard S. Johnson; Edwin L. Hamlet; Doug & Ann Manly; Richard Anson; Steve & Helen Baran; Steve & Sue Cobb; Dick & Carmen Gilman; Wayne, Elaine & Laurel Hoteling; James & Marcia Merrins; Alona

Forbes; Peter D. Clark; Kathy & Peter George; Steve & Mary Rees; Dan Reininga; David Hazelton, and Jim and Sue Mintun.

Community members are strongly encouraged to submit their nominations for the committee's review. Repeat nominations are accepted. Mentors Are the MVPs in Our Community: Speakers and Students Share Powerful Stories at Mentor Recognition Dinner safe and happy," Laura said. "Even when I didn't always know how to say what I was feeling, she listened."

She shared how simple moments together can carry lasting meaning. "Even something simple like breakfast can mean a lot when you're with someone who really cares," she added. Laura emphasized how powerful it is to have someone who never gives up. "Knowing someone has had your back since elementary school is a really big deal."

Student Patience Sprague spoke about her newer mentoring match with Sam Gast and how quickly it has become something she looks forward to each week. "We meet every week for lunch, and that's something I really look forward to," Patience said. "No matter how my day is going, I know lunch with my mentor is going to make it better."

She added that having someone consistently show up makes a bigger difference than many adults realize. "It's nice knowing there's someone who shows up every week just to spend time with me and support me."

Another student speaker, Lilly Scarsone, shared how mentoring creates a lasting ripple effect. "From offering advice on schoolwork to coping with stress, mentors give their mentees the tools they need to face obstacles head-on," Lily shared. She spoke about the deep connection she shares with her mentor, Hannah Swan-Leuze, and their time spent together giving back to the community. "She is a huge part of my life," Lily said, adding that mentoring inspires former mentees to become mentors themselves.

Student Kevoian-Davis highlighted a quality of his mentor, Carlye Montgomery, that resonated strongly with the evening's theme: consistency. "She always shows up, she always remembers what's going on with me. She's there every week, no matter what, and that means a lot," he said. "She knows how to push me in a good way - like 'do your best and don't be lazy.' She jokes around, but she also gives solid advice and actually listens."

Students Emma Couse, Cheryl Kozma, and Gianna Stokes also shared how much they appreciate their mentors. Together, the students' voices painted a powerful picture of why mentors are truly the MVPs of the community. Their commitment, presence, and belief not only change individual lives but strengthen families, schools, and the community as a whole.

The Mentor Recognition Dinner highlighted how much mentors are appreciated and valued by members of the community, and served as a reminder that mentoring changes lives.

THANK YOU to all of the current Chautauqua Striders mentors, and to everyone who has served as a mentor in the past!

There are many more students on our waiting list who would love to be matched with a mentor! Visit chqstriders.org, call 716-489-3483, or email erika@chqstriders.org for more information.

"The best and most beautiful things in the world cannot be seen or even touched..they must be felt with the heart. What we have once enjoyed we can never lose. All that we love deeply becomes a part of us."
